Professor/Actor/Writer/Director Dr. Frank Galati “The Customs of a Liberal Education”

ABOUT OUR SPEAKER: If Oscar, Tony, and Joseph Jefferson got together, they'd have plenty to talk about in their common friend, Frank Galati. Emeritus Professor Galati of Northwestern Univ. has received nominations and awards from the Academy of Motion Pictures, the American Theater Wing, and Chicago Theater for Best Director, Best Screenplay, and Best Actor. In addition, The Frank Galati Prize is given annually to a Northwestern Performance Studies student for excellence in undergraduate essays.

Professor Galati has had his hour upon the stage as Falstaff, won directorial accolades from Tony with The Grapes of Wrath, garnered an Oscar nomination for his screenplay adaptation of The Accidental Tourist, and won the most coveted of all awards for educators, “Teacher of the Year” from the University of South Florida. Not to be outdone by Broadway, Hollywood, and Tampa, his hometown of Chicago bestowed nine Joseph Jefferson Awards on him, including some for his work directing for the Steppenwolf Company and the Goodman Theatre. Join Prof. Galati behind the scenes as he discusses “The Customs of a Liberal Education” with Harvard alumni. — By Beth Donofrio EdM 94, Harvard Club of Sarasota
